National Intelligencer Newspaper Abstracts, 1857

This volume, thirty-first in the series, contains abstracts about the people of this period; the loss of 425 people in the great disaster of the steamship Central America; General Walker's expedition; longevity; trial of Colonel Edwin V. Sumner; extensive coverage of the heirs of Eliz Spencer; appointments by the President; marriage and death notices; criminal cases; all petitions to Congress relating to a person or persons; legal notices; chancery records; and much more. Where there is information about something or someone that might be of interest, an abstract was created. The newspaper reveals a personal side of the lives of many people. During the author's twenty-four years of research on her own family genealogy, she always wanted to read the National Intelligencer and bring to print the many stories found there. They can be found in this series. These abstracts are a great aid to finding locations, ages or relationships of ancestors in Maryland, Washington, D.C., Virginia, and many other places. Names of people in the news in these locales, as well as items or events which might provide a clue to an individual's location, age or relationship to others, are included. The author has organized the abstracts chronologically to make finding specific dates easier. All surnames, land tracts and vessels are included in the index.

National Intelligencer and Washington Advertiser Newspaper Abstracts, 1806-1810

Covering five years, this second volume in the series contains more abstracts from The National Intelligencer and Washington Advertiser, the first newspaper printed in Washington, D.C. Abstracts include advertisements, marriages, deaths (both natural and

National Intelligencer Newspaper Abstracts

This volume, ninth in the series, contains classified ads, appointments by the President, marriage and death notices, congressional lists, advertisements, runaway slave notices and reward postings, tax lists, notable court cases, letters, accounts of military affairs, maritime information and other noteworthy events in and around the nation's capital. Where there is information about something or someone that might be of interest, an abstract was created. The newspaper reveals a personal side of the lives of many people. The compiler states that "The National Intelligencer & Washington Advertiser is hereafter the Daily National Intelligencer." According to "Newspapers in Microform" (Washington D.C. : Library of Congress, 1984) the Daily National Intelligencer had nothing to do with "The National Intelligencer and Washington Advertiser." The newspaper that succeeded the "National Intelligencer & Washington Advertiser" was the "National Intelligencer" distinct from the "Daily National Intelligencer," another newspaper. Of course, as newspapers go, the "National Intelligencer" may have adopted the word "Daily" for a while. To make matters more confusing, the District of Columbia had 2 papers named the "National Intelligencer" along with the "Daily" paper.

Since 1819 over 3,000 souls found their personal “eternity at the end of a rope” in Texas. Some earned their way. Others were the victim of mistaken identity, or an act of vigilante justice. Deserved or not, when the hangman's knot is pulled up tight and the black cap snugged down over your head it is too late to plead your case. This remarkable story begins in 1819 with the first legal hanging in Texas. By 1835 accounts of lynching dotted the records. Although by 1923 legal execution by hanging was discontinued in favor of the electric chair, vigilante justice remained a favorite pastime for some. The accounts of violence are numbing. The cultural and racial implications are profound, and offer a far more accurate, unbiased insight into the tally of African-American and Hispanic victims of mob violence in the Lone Star State than has ever been presented. Many of these deeds were nothing short of morbid theater, worthy of another era. This book is backed up by years of research and thousands of primary source documents. Includes Index and Bibliography.

National Intelligencer Newspaper Abstracts Special Edition, the Civil War Years

The culmination of years of research in dozens of archives and libraries, this fascinating encyclopedia provides an unprecedented look at the network known as the Underground Railroad - that mysterious "system" of individuals and organizations that helped slaves escape the American South to freedom during the years before the Civil War. In operation as early as the 1500s and reaching its peak with the abolitionist movement of the antebellum period, the Underground Railroad saved countless lives and helped alter the course of American history. This is the most complete reference on the Underground Railroad ever published. It includes full coverage of the Railroad in both the United States and Canada, which was the ultimate destination of many of the escaping slaves. "The Underground Railroad: An Encyclopedia of People, Places, and Operations" explores the people, places, writings, laws, and organizations that made this network possible. More than 1,500 entries detail the families and personalities involved in the operation, and sidebars extract primary source materials for longer entries. This encyclopedia features extensive supporting materials, including maps with actual Underground Railroad escape routes, photos, a chronology, genealogies of those involved in the operation, a listing of Underground Railroad operatives by state or Canadian province, a "passenger" list of escaping slaves, and primary and secondary source bibliographies.

National Intelligencer & Washington Advertiser Newspaper Abstracts: 1818-1820

The encyclopedia takes a broad, multidisciplinary approach to the history of the period. It includes general and specific entries on politics and business, labor, industry, agriculture, education and youth, law and legislative affairs, literature, music, the performing and visual arts, health and medicine, science and technology, exploration, life on the Western frontier, family life, slave life, Native American life, women, and more than a hundred influential individuals.

National Intelligencer Newspaper Abstracts, 1850

This is an authoritative, comprehensive account of Victoria's justice system, starting with a tour of the historic justice precinct which is located on the corner of La Trobe Street and Russell Street, Melbourne. The author takes us back to the earliest days of Victoria's settlement and introduces the politicians, police, magistrates, and even the criminals who played their parts in Melbourne and Victoria's development. We are shown how the prison hulks developed into stockades on land, and uncover the philosophy behind the construction of the prisons – many no longer occupied – and the building of courts which were built for conducting trials, both civil and criminal. The book is, in many ways, an insight into an aspect of Victoria's social history about which little has been written elsewhere. It is a valuable addition to the justice bibliography and even exposes a mystery or two. It took seven years to research and fact check, and includes many photos. All of the author's proceeds of this book after costs will be donated to Victoria Police Legacy, which looks after families of deceased police officers who have died in the course of their duties.

Eternity at the End of a Rope

Vols. for 1950-19 contained treaties and international agreements issued by the Secretary of State as United States treaties and other international agreements.

National Intelligencer Newspaper Abstracts, Special Edition

Article abstracts and citations of reviews and dissertations covering the United States and Canada.
