Agent Representation is Free- Builders pay your agent's commission, so you'd be foolish not to bring representation, who is highly experienced in dealing with builders.

Everything's Included, Overview- The "Everything's ...

4 Limited Options you do have- The Four things you may still have some limited ability to choose on. Exterior Elevations- Most builders offer 3-6 possible variations for the front of each home model they offer. They do this in order to comply with "monotony rules" set forth by the municipalities to keep every home in the neighborhood from looking too "cookie cutter". Lot Selection- Builders will most likely still allow you to choose from the lots they have available within the subdivision, that will accommodate the particular model you have chosen to build. Structural Options- Some limited options such as the choice of a loft vs fourth bedroom, an office vs a 4th bedroom, 2 car vs 3 car garage, or a covered back porch/patio may be available. Exterior Paint Colors- Exterior Paint colors, and possibly stone siding colors may be an option contained within the Exterior Elevation.

1 Grade of Materials- LVP Flooring, Tile, Carpet, Cabinetry, plumbing fixtures, Electrical Fixtures, and Stone countertops are typically only offered in one grade of materials. However, multiple color choices within those materials are usually available to choose between.

Kitchen Appliances- One brand, and model of appliances are typically offered. However, some of the builder's larger/nicer floorplans may upgrade to double wall ovens and a cooktop in place of the less expensive freestanding stove and above the range microwave range hood combo unit.

Interior Wall Colors- Lennar only offers white walls in its Colorado homes, but some of the other builders may offer a war neutral color such as Agreeable Grey for the interior walls. However, in an effort to reduce painting labor costs, most of them are moving towards white as the only interior paint color choice.

Staircase Hardware- One grade of staircase hardware is typically offered.

Pro's of Everything's Included- Pros are outlined here.

Con's of Everything's Included- Cons are outlined here.
