So that We Had To Put Back into Port for 12 Hours I Left the Ship and Came Home Thinking What a Surprise It Would Be for My Wife and Open that Maybe She Would Be Glad To See Me So Soon the Thought Was in My Head as I Turned into My Own Street and at that Moment a Cab Passed Me and There She Was Sitting by the Side of Fair Ben the Two Chatting and Laughing with Never a Thought for Me as I Stood Watching Them from the Footpath I'll Tell You and I'll Give You My Word for It

But as I Ran I Got Cunning Too and Hung Back a Little To See Them without Being Seen They Pulled Up Soon at the Railway Station There Was a Good Crowd round the Booking-Office So I Got Quite Close to Them without Being Seen They Took Tickets for New Brighton So Did I but I Got in Three Carriages behind Them When We Reached It They Walked along the Parade and I Was Never More than a Hundred Yards from Them the Last I Saw Them Hire a Boat and Start for a Row for It Was a Very Hot Day and They Thought no Doubt that It Would Be Cooler on the Water

It Was Just as if They Had Been Given into My Hands It Was a Bit of a Haze and You Could Not See More than a Few Hundred Yards I Hired a Boat for Myself and I Pulled after Them I Could See the Blur of Their Craft that They Were Going Nearly As Fast as I and They Must Have Been a Long Mile from the Shore before I Caught Them Up the Haze Was like a Curtain All around Us There Were We Three in the Middle of It My God I Forget Their Faces When I Saw like a Madman and Jabbed at Me with an Awl for He Must Have Seen Death in My Eyes

I Got past It Got One in with My Stick That Crushed His Head like an Egg I Would Have Spared Her Apps for All My Madness but She Threw Her Arms round Him Crying Out to Him and Calling Him Alec I Struck Again and She Lay Stretched beside Him I Was like a Wild Beast Then That Had Tasted Blood if Sarah Had Been There by the Lord She Should Have Joined Him I Pulled Out My Knife and Well There I've Said Enough He Gave Me a Kind of Savage Joy When I Thought How Sarah Would Feel and She Had Such Signs as these of What a Middling Had Brought About

Then I Tied the Bodies into the Boat Stove a Plank and Stood By until They Had Sunk I Knew Very Well that the Owner Would Think that They Had Lost Their Bearings in the Haze and Had Drifted Off

out to Sea I Clean Myself Up Got Back to Land and Join My Ship without a Soul Having a Suspicion of What Passed that Night I Made Up the Packet for Sarah Cushing the Next Day I Sent It from Belfast There You Have the Old Truth of It You Can Hang Me We'll Do What You Like with Me but You CanNot Punish Me as I Have Been Punished

Love and Barton's Manchester Exchange Directory of 1848, Etc. - Scholar's Choice Edition

Formed in 1839, the Anti-Corn Law League was one of the most important campaigns to introduce the ideas of economic liberalism into mainstream political discourse in Britain. Its aspiration for free trade played a crucial role in defining the agenda of nineteenth-century liberalism and shaping the modern British state. Its faith in the free market still resonates in Britain's public policy debates today. This is the first comprehensive study of the League which makes use of recent methodological developments in social history.

Reproduction of the original: The Condition of the Working-Class in England in 1844 by Frederick Engels

The British Museum Catalogue of Printed Books, 1881-1900: Lockelvitz to Lzheupovanie

Mary Barton is set in the English city of Manchester between 1839 and 1842, and deals with the difficulties faced by the Victorian working class. John Barton is a questioner of the distribution of wealth and the relations between rich and poor. Soon his wife dies—he blames it on her grief over the disappearance of her sister Esther. Having already lost his son Tom at a young age, Barton is left to raise his daughter, Mary, alone and now falls into depression and begins to involve himself in the Chartist, trade-union movement. Elizabeth Gaskell (1810-1865) was an English novelist and short story writer. Her novels offer a detailed portrait of the lives of many strata of Victorian society, including the very poor, and are of interest to social historians as well as lovers of literature. Some of Gaskell's best known novels are Cranford, North and South, and Wives and Daughters.

The British country house has long been regarded as the jewel in the nation's heritage crown. But the country house is also an expression of wealth and power, and as scholars reconsider the nation's colonial past, new questions are being posed about these great houses and their links to Atlantic slavery. This book, authored by a range of academics and heritage professionals, grew out of a 2009 conference on 'Slavery and the British Country house: mapping the current research' organised by English Heritage in partnership with the University of the West of England, the National Trust and the Economic History Society. It asks what links might be established between the wealth derived from slavery and the British country house and what implications such links should have for the way such properties are represented to the public today. Lavishly illustrated and based on the latest scholarship, this wide-ranging and innovative volume provides in-depth examinations of individual houses, regional studies and critical reconsiderations of existing heritage sites, including two studies specially commissioned by English Heritage and one sponsored by the National Trust.

The old buildings and historic places of British Columbia form a kind of "roadside memory," a tangible link with stories of settlement, change, and abandonment that reflect the great themes of BC's history. Michael Kluckner began painting his personal map of the province in a watercolour sketchbook. In 1999, after he put a few of the sketches on his website, a network of correspondents emerged that eventually led him to the family letters, photo albums, and memories from a disappearing era of the province. Vanishing British Columbia is a record of these places and the stories they tell, presenting a compelling argument for stewardship of regional history in the face of urbanization and globalization.

Nineteenth Century Short Title Catalogue. Series II, Phase I, 1816-1870

Edward Burra never followed the fashion- in the thirties, when modern art was dominated by abstraction and landscape, he painted people; in the sixties, when landscape was completely out of fashion, he started to find it interesting. His life was an unusual one- profoundly disabled, he lived with his parents, and was in constant pain. Only when he was painting could he forget his body. At the same time he was a man with a rich and full life. He was a letter-writer of genius, writing every afternoon to a wide circle of friends. His letters are camp, witty, full of the energy and delight in life which he could not express physically. Inventive, entertaining, and extraordinarily original, his writing expresses a man who combined profound personal loyalty with distaste for any kind of emotional grandstanding. This is Jane Stevenson's first biography. It will of course be welcomed by historians of modern British art, but equally readers of Stevenson's fiction will delight in her portrait of this wonderfully original man and his circle- it has, she says, been like eavesdropping on a fifty-year conversation.

The Condition of the Working-Class in England in 1844

The newest addition to the Artist's Materials series offers the first technical study of one of Australia's greatest modern painters. Sidney Nolan (1917–1992) is renowned for an oeuvre ranging from views of Melbourne's seaside suburb St. Kilda to an iconic series on outlaw hero Ned Kelly. Working in factories from age fourteen, Nolan began his training spray painting signs on glass, which was followed by a job cutting and painting displays for Fayrefield Hats. Such employment offered him firsthand experience with commercial synthetic paints developed during the 1920s and 1930s. In 1939, having given up his job at Fayrefield in pursuit of an artistic career, Nolan became obsessed with European abstract paintings he saw reproduced in books and magazines. With little regard for the longevity of his work, he began to exploit materials such as boot polish, dyes, secondhand canvas, tissue paper, and old photographs, in addition to commercial and household paints. He continued to embrace new materials after moving to London in 1953. Oil-based Ripolin enamel is known to have been Nolan's preferred paint, but this fascinating study—certain to appeal to conservators, conservation scientists, art historians, and general readers with an interest in modern art—reveals his equally innovative use of nitrocellulose, alkyds, and other diverse materials.

MARY BARTON

"[...] CHAPTER I. I was born in Liverpool, on the 4th of June in 1769 or '70. I am consequently about ninety-three years old. My friends say I am a wonderful old man. I believe I am. I have always enjoyed such excellent health, that I do not know what the sensation is of a medical man putting his finger on my wrist. I have eaten and drunk in moderation, slept little, risen early, and kept a clear conscience before God and man. My memory is surprising. I am often astonished at myself in recalling to mind events, persons, and [...]"

Streets with a Story

Flora Thompson (1876 to 1947) wrote what may be the quintessential distillation of English country life at the turn of the twentieth century. In 1945, the three books Lark Rise (1939), Over to Candleford (1941), and Candleford Green (1943) were published together in one elegant volume, and this new omnibus Nonpareil edition, complete with charming wood engravings, should be a cause for real rejoicing. The books have inspired two plays that ran in London, and the trilogy has been adapted into a multi-part, long-running television drama series by the BBC. The first series of ten episodes is scheduled to be syndicated on various PBS stations throughout the United States. A second series of twelve episodes, currently being broadcast in the United Kingdom, will follow in the United States shortly after.

The Manchester School of Economics

In 1848, the penultimate year of his life, Chopin visited England and Scotland at the instigation of his aristocratic Scots pupil, Jane Stirling. In the autumn of that year, he returned to Paris. The following autumn he was dead. Despite the fascination the composer continues to hold for scholars, this brief but important period, and his previous visit to London in 1837, remain little known. In this richly illustrated study, Peter Willis draws on extensive original documentary evidence, as well as cultural artefacts, to tell the story of these two visits and to place them into aristocratic and artistic life in mid-nineteenth-century England and Scotland. In addition to filling a significant hole in our knowledge of the composer's life, the book adds to our understanding of a number of important figures, including Jane Stirling and the painter Ary Scheffer. The social and artistic milieux of London, Manchester, Glasgow and Edinburgh are brought to vivid life.
