The Loan Officer's Practical Guide to Residential Finance 2021

This is the Updated 2014 Edition of the first book in the Practical Guide series for the mortgage industry. The January 2014 Version has been updated to meet the requirements of the SAFE Act, CFPB, Dodd-Frank and many other changes. We have also made many of the changes recommended by Amazon readers and reviewers. With all of the changes in the industry, keeping this product up-to-date is a full time job. The book covers all of the vocational skills required of the loan originator, but also includes all Federal law, ethics, predatory lending and fraud components required by the Federal SAFE loan originator licensing Act of 2008. Published since 1992, and updated annually, this 408 page textbook was written as an answer to the sink-or-swim training methods of many mortgage firms. The format is designed to give the newly initiated loan officer/agent, lender, processor, or other initiate the practical information they need to do the loan officer's job. The reader learns how to understand rate and point quotes, how to use a financial calculator, how to make basic computations customers require, how to understand loan programs and compare product features. The student progresses through understanding loan specifications and underwriting guidelines to a practical understanding of ratios, income, assets and closing costs, debts and credit history. This is then placed in the context of the loan application - how to collect all the required documents and disclosures and supervise a loan from application to closing. Beyond the basics, students learn how to finance various property types; condos, PUDs, new construction and investment property.

Want to learn how to cut your financing costs, avoid pitfalls, and negotiate the best terms? Then let Gary Eldred's 106 Mortgage Secrets All Borrowers Must Learn--But Lenders Don't Tell, Second Edition guide you. With these 106 secrets, you'll build the confidence and the knowledge to: * Increase your borrowing power * Obtain the lowest interest rate * Understand the true pros and cons of ARMs * Cut (or eliminate) the cost of mortgage insurance * Save big with seller financing, assumptions, foreclosures, and REOs * Strengthen your credit profile and credit score * Avoid getting taken... by the fine print and garbage fees * Steer clear of scams and unprincipled loan reps and lenders * Accumulate wealth through homeownership and investment properties Simple, concise, and comprehensive, this book reveals everything property buyers need to know--especially the 106 financing secrets lenders too often omit.

Why obtaining a current edition is so important: The mortgage lending market is very dynamic, with important loan origination and processing documents, laws, and loan products and policies that can change each year. This training manual is edited and revised every year to reflect any changes that may have occurred since the previous year. This is so important. Take a look at the list below of some of the changes that have taken place just since 2010 regarding the origination of mortgage loans: Dodd-Frank Wall Street Reform and Consumer Protection Act (signed into law 2010) Ability-To-Repay Rule (become effective in 2014) High-Cost Mortgage Rule (become effective in 2014) The Loan Origination Compensation Rule (become effective in 2014) The Loan Estimate (replaced both the Good Faith Estimate and Truth-In-Lending Statement in 2015) The Closing Disclosure (replaced the HUD-1 Settlement Statement in 2015) The Appraisal Rule (become effective 2015) New and revised Uniform Residential Loan Application (become effective 2018) New home loan underwriting guidelines from Fannie Mae's Eligibility Matrix and Selling Guide (may significantly change from year-to-year). Maximum Loan Limits: for General and High-Cost areas (sometimes changes annually). If you are a mortgage loan originator then you need to be aware of the latest changes and originate and process your home loans according to those changes in order for you and your loans to be "In Compliance". If you see a mortgage training manual being sold and it talks about completing the Good Faith Estimate then you know you are looking at a manual that hasn't been updated since 2014. The Loan Officer's Handbook for Success is edited annually and currently reflects the changes that have taken place within the mortgage lending market up to and for 2019 and reflects what's going on and is now required within the mortgage lending market.

Purpose: This itemizes the purposes and objectives of that chapter. II. Focus of This Chapter: In written form, this area expounds on the purposes of that chapter and highlights the main ideas and topics presented in that chapter within the main book. Suggestions are also sometimes included here on how to present the information and what your Loan Officers should have learned following them reading the main book and your training on that chapter. III. Documents Needed For Training: This lists those documents to prepare and bring to the trainings (if any). If any of those documents are available within the main book, I will also state where those documents can be found in the main book. IV. I included this because we all can get sidetracked sometimes by questions and/or stories we may be telling during the training. This is here so you can quickly tell at a glance if you are staying on track and/or have covered all the main points you wish to discuss on that chapter - before moving on. Also, once you have completed your training on each section within this guide, you have the option of testing your loan officers on the material you covered in that section. Exams on each section are located at the back of this Trainer's Guide and each exam has an accompanying answer sheet. You decide whether you wish to have your Loan Officers complete these exams on paper or to ask them individually or as a group for the answers to those questions. Of course, availability of time and content of that section will usually determine which way to go here. Also, having someone personally train your loan officers ensures that the material in the main book is fully read, understood, and that they understand how, why, and when to apply the material and lending tools discussed. Why spend all of your valuable time on preparing for your trainings when this Trainer's Guide has done it all for you? The Loan Officer's Handbook for Success

Many individuals take out loans to buy a house, car, or pay for a college education. Businesses use loans to start companies, purchase inventory, or invest in capital equipment. Loan officers facilitate this lending by finding potential clients and helping them to apply for loans. Loan officers gather information to determine the likelihood that individuals and businesses will repay the loan. Loan officers may also provide guidance to prospective borrowers who have problems qualifying for traditional loans. For example, loan officers might determine the most appropriate type of loan for a particular customer and explain specific requirements and restrictions associated with the loan. Loan officers usually specialize in commercial, consumer, or mortgage loans. Commercial or business loans help companies pay for new equipment or expand operations. Consumer loans include home equity, automobile, and personal loans. Mortgage loans are loans made to purchase real estate or to refinance an existing mortgage. Loan officers guide clients through the process of applying for a loan. The process begins with the client contacting the bank through a phone call, visiting a branch, or filling out a Web-based loan application. The loan officer obtains basic information from the client about the purpose of the loan and the applicant's ability to pay the loan. The loan officer may need to explain the different types of loans and credit terms available to the applicant. Loan officers answer questions about the process and sometimes assist clients in filling out the application. After a client completes an application, the loan officer begins the process of analyzing and verifying the information on the application to determine the client's creditworthiness. Often, loan officers can quickly access the client's credit history by using underwriting software that determines if a client is eligible for the loan. When a credit history is not available or when unusual financial circumstances are present, the loan officer may request additional financial information from the client or, in the case of commercial loans, copies of the company's financial statements. Commercial loans are often too complex for a loan officer to rely solely on underwriting software. The variety in companies' financial statements and varying types of collateral require human judgment. Collateral is any asset, such as a factory, house, or car, owned by the borrower that becomes the property of the bank if the loan is not repaid. Loan officers comment on, and verify, the information of a loan application in a loan file, which is used to analyze whether the prospective loan meets the lending institution's requirements. Loan officers then decide, in consultation with their managers, whether to grant the loan. In many instances, loan officers act as salespeople. Commercial loan officers, for example, contact firms to determine their needs for loans. If a firm is seeking new funds, the loan officer will try to persuade the company to obtain the loan from his or her institution. Similarly, mortgage loan officers develop relationships with commercial and residential real estate agencies, so that when an individual or firm buys a property, the real estate agent might recommend contacting a specific loan officer for financing. Work environment. Working as a loan officer usually involves considerable work outside the office. For example, commercial and mortgage loan officers frequently work away from their offices and rely on laptop computers and cellular telephones to keep in contact with their employers and clients. Mortgage loan officers often work out of their home or car, visiting offices or homes of clients to complete loan applications. Commercial loan officers sometimes travel to other cities to prepare complex loan agreements. Consumer loan officers, however, are likely to spend most of their time in an office.

The Financial Crisis Inquiry Report, published by the U.S. Government and the Financial Crisis Inquiry Commission in early 2011, is the official government report on the United States financial collapse and the review of major financial institutions that bankrupted and failed, or would have without help from the government. The commission and the report were implemented after Congress passed an act in 2009 to review and prevent fraudulent activity. The report details, among other things, the periods before, during, and after the crisis, what led up to it, and analyses of subprime mortgage lending, credit expansion and banking policies, the collapse of companies like Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac, and the federal bailouts of Lehman and AIG. It also discusses the aftermath of the fallout and our current state. This report should be of interest to anyone concerned about the financial situation in the U.S. and around the world. THE FINANCIAL CRISIS INQUIRY COMMISSION is an independent, bi-partisan, government-appointed panel of 10 people that was created to "examine the causes, domestic and global, of the current financial and economic crisis in the United States." It was established as part of the Fraud Enforcement and Recovery Act of 2009. The commission consisted of private citizens with expertise in economics and finance, banking, housing, market regulation, and consumer protection. They examined and reported on "the collapse of major financial institutions that failed or would have failed if not for exceptional assistance from the government." News Dissector DANNY SCHECHTER is a journalist, blogger and filmmaker. He has been reporting on economic crises since the 1980's when he was with ABC News.
