Overtraining and improper weightlifting techniques may also lead to injury.

One of the most common athletic injuries is Spondylolisthesis.

Spondylolisthesis often occurs in the lower back, which bears more weight.

It may feel like common low back pain or, radiating nerve pain.

As with many athletic injuries, physical therapy, rest, and medication are often the key to recovery.

For both prevention and recovery, get adequate rest, cross train, and stretch regularly

Talk with your doctor about the best recovery techniques for your body.
