I delitti dei caruggi

Matteo De Foresta, giornalista di quarant'anni che vive e lavora a Genova, viene aggredito nei caruggi da una misteriosa banda di immigrati. A salvarlo da morte certa sarà Bob, senegalese molto conosciuto in centro storico e personaggio controverso per i suoi comportamenti non sempre ortodossi. Per sdebitarsi, Matteo accetterà di aiutare Bob a scoprire chi si cela dietro la pericolosa organizzazione criminale che lo ha aggredito. I dubbi del suo amico vicequestore Guido Rocchetti, con cui condividerà come sempre l'indagine, e la complessità del caso, faranno sì che per Matteo non tutto sia chiaro come sembra. Bob è davvero chi dice di essere? Chi si nasconde dietro alla banda che sta prendendo il controllo dello spaccio in centro storico? Mentre la sua vita sentimentale è sempre in bilico tra Barbara, la sua compagna, e Clara, direttrice del giornale per cui lavora, Matteo dovrà scavare a fondo tra le pietre dei caruggi. E tra aggressioni, rapimenti, cadaveri che scompaiono dovrà portare a galla il fango che si cela sotto i vicoli della Superba. Marvin Menini è nato a Genova il 18 febbraio 1971. Caruggi di piombo

Matteo De Foresta, giornalista genovese quarantenne ed eterno immaturo, pensa di aver chiuso per sempre con le indagini che lo hanno portato più volte vicino alla morte. Riceve invece da un rapinatore condannato all'ergastolo una confessione su un caso irrisolto di quasi cinquant'anni prima: il luogo in cui trovare il cadavere di Giovanna Barberis, rapita e scomparsa nel 1978. Grazie alla collaborazione con Francesca Santi, agguerrita giornalista genovese, scoprirà che quello scheletro nascosto così a lungo riserva molti più misteri di quanto non si pensasse. Fino ad evocare dal passato lo spettro del terrorismo e di un gruppo genovese attivo negli anni di piombo: il collettivo "Vento d'Ottobre". Tra colpi di scena, difficoltà e i suoi eterni dubbi sentimentali, Matteo torna con la sua indagine più pericolosa e complessa. I morti non parlano

Matteo De Foresta, giornalista genovese e quarantenne, affronta la sua prova più difficile. Braccato sia dalla Polizia sia dalla Mafia, deve comprendere in fretta ciò che Bob gli ha detto prima di morire; per salvare se stesso e per scagionare il suo amico vicequestore Guido Rocchetti, ormai latitante ed accusato di essere il contatto in Polizia del clan mafioso dei Lo Nardo. In un'indagine condotta tra il centro storico di Genova e un'altra città europea, Matteo dovrà scoprire con l'aiuto dei suoi amici Bruno e Andre quale realtà si nasconde dietro alle parole di Bob. E quale verità si cela nel suo cuore: sempre diviso a metà tra la compagna Barbara e la sua amante Clara. In un intricato gioco di silenzi, bugie, tradimenti e ricerche dovrà anche fare i conti con il passato di una misteriosa, introvabile donna e del suo compagno ormai morto: fino a scoprire, in un finale pirotecnico, una sottile quanto ironica verità: soltanto i morti non parlano. All the World's Mornings

Gli eroi civili e gli uomini dello stato uccisi da mafia, camorra e terrorismo Negli ultimi cinquant'anni mafia, camorra e criminalità comune hanno compiuto una mattanza che non ha eguali in nessuna parte del mondo: l'Italia è il Paese con il maggior numero di vittime che appartengono alla società civile, al mondo delle professioni, alla Chiesa, alle forze dell'ordine e alle istituzioni. Il lungo elenco dei "delitti eccellenti" comprende politici, magistrati, giornalisti, docenti universitari, avvocati, poliziotti, carabinieri, parroci. Uomini che hanno scelto di mettere l'amore per la giustizia e la verità al primo posto: una scelta che è costata loro la vita. Ma l'orrore per queste esecuzioni ha scosso l'opinione pubblica al punto da far diventare queste vittime dei simboli della lotta contro le ingiustizie, un monito eterno a non dimenticare che l'indifferenza uccide. Questo libro fa luce sui delitti che hanno spesso messo in pericolo le istituzioni e talvolta cambiato in modo profondo il percorso della storia del nostro Paese. Politici, magistrati, preti e giornalisti: uomini della società civile e delle istituzioni barbaramente assassinati. Alcuni tra i casi presenti nel libro: Luigi Calabresi Carlo Casalegno Piersanti Mattarella Vittorio Bachelet Walter Tobagi Giuseppe Salvia Raffaele Delcogliano Pio La Torre Carlo Alberto dalla Chiesa Rocco Chinnici Don Peppino Romano Salvo Lima Ignazio Salvo Bruno De Stefano. Giornalista professionista, ha lavorato per diversi quotidiani, tra cui il «Corriere della Sera», «Corriere del Mezzogiorno», «La Gazzetta dello sport» e «City». Tra le sue pubblicazioni per la Newton Compton La camorra dalla A alla Z; Storia e storie di camorra; La casta della monnezza; La penisola dei mafiosi; I delitti di Napoli; I boss della camorra; Napoli criminale, I boss che hanno cambiato la storia della malavita e I nuovi padrini (scritto con Vincenzo Ceruso e Pietro Comito). Nel settembre del 2012 ha vinto il Premio Siani con il volume Giancarlo Siani. Passione e morte di un giornalista scomodo.

I grandi delitti che hanno cambiato la storia d'Italia

In the piazza, a man lies dead. No one will say if they witnessed his killing. This presents a challenge to the investigating officer, a man who earnestly believes in the values of a democratic and modern society. Indeed, his enquiries are soon blocked off by a wall of silence and vested interests; he must work against the community to save it and expose the truth. The narrative moves on two levels: that of the investigator, who reveals a chain of savage crimes; and that of the bystanders and watchers, of those complicit with secret power, whose gossipy, furtive conversations have only one end - to stop the truth coming out. This novel about the Mafia is also a mesmerizing demonstration of how that organization sustains itself. It is both a beautifully, tautly written story and a brave act of denunciation.

An indispensable reference on World War II produced by the Library of Congress and edited by Pulitzer Prize-winning historian David M. Kennedy. With hundreds of illustrations and quotations from contemporary documents, this will be the most authoritative popular reference on World War II. The noted historian John Keegan called World War II "the largest single event in human history." More than sixty years after it ended, that war continues to shape our world. Going far beyond accounts of the major battles, The Library of Congress World War II Companion examines, in a unique and engaging manner, this devastating conflict, its causes, conduct, and aftermath. It considers the politics that shaped the involvement of the major combatants; military leadership and the characteristics of major Allied and Axis armed services; the weaponry that resulted in the war's unprecedented destruction, as well as debates over the use of these weapons; the roles of resistance groups and underground fighters; war crimes; daily life during wartime; the uses of propaganda; and much more. Drawn from the unparalleled collections of the institution that has been called "America's Memory," The Library of Congress World War II Companion includes excerpts from contemporary letters, journals, pamphlets, and other documents, as well as first-person accounts recorded by the Library of Congress Veterans History Project. The text is complemented by more than 150 illustrations. Organized into topical chapters (such as "The Media War," "War Crimes and the Holocaust," and two chapters on "Military Operations" that cover the important battles), the book also includes readers to navigate through the rich store of information in these pages. Filled with facts and figures, information about unusual aspects of the war, and moving personal accounts, this remarkable volume will be indispensable to anyone who wishes to understand the World War II era and its continuing reverberations.

Excerpt from book: II MY FATHER I Have incidentally mentioned that my father was the doctor of Villanova. As a matter of fact, he practiced his profession more for love than for money, having a comfortable income from three large farms which we owned in the vicinity of the village. Those farms had belonged to our family for generations. They were rented out, but part of the rent was paid us in produce and my father had quite a little to say about the cultivation of the land and the raising of cattle. This gave him something to do, especially in the good season. We spent the winter in Turin and moved out to the country early in the spring, when active life begins in the fields. While in Villanova, he practiced medicine as an extra occupation. He did it on the humanitarian principle of contributing his share of knowledge to relieve the miseries of the people among whom he was born and whom he loved. Everybody knew him within twenty miles of Villanova, everybody knew his horse Cianin. At the time I am talking of, he had to a great extent reduced his practice, as the task of caring for the family was taking most of his time. Still, during the summer the people from the village and the country around came to consult him, for they had great confidence in his advice. He had an office on the ground floor of the house, and the patients waited for their turn out in the garden, where a few rustic benches were set for their accommodation. We children stopped our playing now and then to have a chat with those simple people and to hear from them their tales of woe. They talked about their diseases, using the most unscientific expressions to describe them. Fire in the throat, worms in the stomach, poison in the liver, bugs in the brains, were among the most common troubles that afflicted the crowd. I mu...

The Unbidden Guest

Something More Than Night is a Dashiell Hammett and Raymond Chandler-inspired murder mystery set in Thomas Aquinas's vision of Heaven. It's a noir detective story starring fallen angels, the heavenly choir, nightclub stigmatics, a priest with a dirty secret, a femme fatale, and the Voice of God. Somebody has murdered the angel Gabriel. Worse, the Jericho Trumpet has gone missing, putting Heaven on the brink of a truly cosmic crisis. But the twisty plot that unfolds from the murder investigation leads to something much bigger: a con job one billion years in the making. Because this is no mere murder. A small band of angels has decided to break out of Heaven. They need a human patsy to make their plan work. Much of the story is told from the point of view of Bayliss, a cynical fallen angel who has modeled himself on Philip Marlowe. The yarn he spins follows the progression of a Marlowe novel—the mysterious dame who needs his help, getting grilled by the bulls, finding a stiff, getting slipped a mickey. Angels and gunsels, dames with eyes like fire, and a grand maguffin, Ian Tregillis's Something More Than Night is a murder mystery for the cosmos.

A groundbreaking work that reveals how Marlon Brando shaped his legacy in art and life. When people think about Marlon Brando, they think of the movie star, the hunk, the scandals. In Brando's Smile, Susan L. Mizruchi reveals the Brando others have missed: the man who collected four thousand books; the man who rewrote scripts, trimming his lines to make them sharper; the man who consciously used his body and employed the objects around him to create believable characters; the man who loved Emily Dickinson's poetry. To write this biography, Mizruchi gained unprecedented access to a vast number of annotated books from Brando's library, hand-edited copies of screenplays, private letters, and recorded interviews that have never before been quoted in a biography. Original interviews with some of the still-living players from Brando's life, including Ellen Adler, his one-time girlfriend and the daughter of his acting teacher Stella Adler, provide even deeper insight into the complex person whose intelligence belied the high-school dropout. Mizruchi shows how Brando's embrace of foreign cultures and social outsiders led to his brilliant performances in unusual roles—a gay man, an Asian, a German soldier—to test himself and to foster empathy on a global scale. We also meet the political Brando: the civil rights activist, the close friend of James Baldwin, the actor who declined his Oscar to support Indian rights. More than seventy stunning—and many rare—photographs of Marlon Brando illuminate this portrait of the man who has left an astounding cultural legacy.

The events of September 11, 2001 confronted the United States and the rest of the World with the reality of a new dimension of international terrorism. This new dimension did not start nor end with the attacks against the World Trade Center or the Pentagon, but began in the 1990s. This study examines the new dimension of international terrorism, contrasting it with the classical terrorism, the predominantly left-wing terrorist movements of the 1960s - 1980s in Europe, which were a subset of the bipolar geo-political arena. The author establishes the relationship of radical Islamist movements to the terrorist groups of the new dimension (principally focusing on Al-Qaeda) in providing the motivation for committing catastrophic terrorist acts, looks at the shadowy world of terrorist financing and makes suggestions regarding international counter-terrorist strategies.

Power in medieval society has traditionally been ascribed to figures of public authority--violent knights and conflicting sovereigns who altered the surface of civic life through the exercise of law and force. The wives and consorts of these powerful men have generally been viewed as decorative attendants, while common women were presumed to have had no power or consequence. Reassessing the conventional definition of power that has shaped such portrayals, Women and Power in the Middle Ages reveals the varied manifestations of female power in the medieval household and community--from the cultural power wielded by the wives of Venetian patriarchs to the economic power of English peasant women and the religious power of female saints. Among the specific topics addresses are Griselda's manipulation of silence as power in Chaucer's "The Clerk's Tale"; the extensive networks of influence devised by Lady Honor Lisle; and the role of medieval women book owners as arbiters of lay piety and ambassadors of culture. In every case, the essays seek to transcend simple polarities of public and private, male and female, in order to provide a more realistic analysis of the workings of power in feudal society.

The Mediterranean has been the meeting-place of the cultures of Europe, Asia and Africa, the battleground of races and nations and the focus of three great religions, Christianity, Judaism and Islam. David Abulafia, doyen of Mediterranean scholars, has brought together a team of leading specialists from many countries to tell this enthralling and complex story as a connected narrative: from the physical setting, the prehistoric traders and the struggle between Phoenicians, Greeks and Etruscans ending in Roman victory, to the post-Roman nations, the Christian and Islamic powers, domination by England and France, and finally the twentieth century, divided between war and mass tourism. This study covers all of recorded history, incorporating recent research and tools ranging from linguistics to underwater archaeology, accompanied by spectacular illustrations. Here is the only complete and up-to-date overview of one of the great themes of world history.

The Mediterranean in History

In his rich and learned new book about the naturalization of foreigners, Peter Sahlins offers an unusual and unexpected contribution to the histories of immigration, nationality, and citizenship in France and Europe. Through a study of foreign citizens, Sahlins discovers and documents a premodern world of legal citizenship, its juridical and administrative fictions, and its social practices. Telling the story of naturalization from the sixteenth to the early nineteenth centuries, Unnaturally French offers an original interpretation of the continuities and ruptures of absolutist and modern citizenship, in the process challenging the historiographical centrality of the French Revolution. Unnaturally French is a brilliant synthesis of social, legal, and political history. At its core are the tens of thousands of foreign citizens whose exhaustively researched social identities and geographic origins are presented here for the first time. Sahlins makes a signal contribution to the legal history of nationality in his comprehensive account of the theory, procedure, and practice of naturalization. In his political history of the making and unmaking of the French absolute monarchy, Sahlins considers the shifting policies toward immigrants, foreign citizens, and state membership. Sahlins argues that the absolute citizen, exemplified in Louis XIV's attempt to tax all foreigners in 1697, gave way to new practices in the middle of the eighteenth century. This "citizenship revolution," long before 1789, produced changes in private and in political culture that led to the abolition of the distinction between foreigners and citizens. Sahlins shows how the Enlightenment and the political failure of the monarchy in France laid the foundations for the development of an exclusively political citizen, in opposition to the absolute citizen who had been above all a legal subject. The author completes his original book with a study of naturalization under Napoleon and the Bourbon Restoration. Tracing the twisted history of the foreign citizen from the Old Regime to the New, Sahlins sheds light on the continuities and ruptures of the revolutionary process, and also its consequences.

Focusing on Florence, Thomas Kuehn demonstrates the formative influence of law on Italian society during the Renaissance, especially in the spheres of family and women. Kuehn's use of legal sources along with letters, diaries, and contemporary accounts allows him to present a compelling image of the social processes that affected the shape and function of the law. The numerous law courts of Italian city-states constantly devised and revised statutes. Kuehn traces the permutations of these laws, then examines their use by Florentines to arbitrate conflict and regulate social behavior regarding such issues as kinship, marriage, business, inheritance, illegitimacy, and gender. Ranging from one man's embittered denunciation of his father to another's reaction to his kinsmen's rejection of him as illegitimate, Law, Family, and Women provides fascinating evidence of the tensions riddling family life in Renaissance Florence. Kuehn shows how these same tensions, often articulated in and through the law, affected women. He examines the role of the mundualdus—a male legal guardian for women—in Florence, the control of fathers over their married daughters, and issues of inheritance by and through women. An ambitious attempt to reformulate the agenda of Renaissance social history, Kuehn's work will be of value to both legal anthropologists and social historians. Thomas Kuehn is professor of history at Clemson University.

Odell Deefus may be a little dumb, but when he discovers a freshly dug grave at the back of Dean Lowry's house, he understands that it's intended for him. When he finds an old lady's corpse in the freezer, he knows that she has been murdered. And when the bomb in his car explodes, levelling every building in the vicinity, and Odell must suddenly hide the body of a terrorist, even he recognises that things are getting seriously weird. This blackly funny novel of our times follows what happens when Odell Deefus takes one wrong turn on the journey of his life and crashes into a world of oddballs, misfits, drug-dealers, religious fanatics and crooked cops, hypocrisy, torture and bloody murder. In Callisto, Odell Deefus discovers a vast web of corruption and deceit leading to the dark heart of America. Imagine the Coen Brothers directing a movie about what happens when Forrest Gump is mistaken for Osama Bin Laden, and you end up with Callisto, a full-throttle satire of contemporary America, a novel of imaginative exuberance and darkly funny audacity “Nonostante siano passati tanti anni a qualcuno la verità dà ancora fastidio... Tutto chiaro fin dal primo momento, tutto incerto, coperto, inconfessato, depistato per i decenni a venire.” Giorgio Bocca Per la prima volta le prove dell'attentato nella ricostruzione del magistrato che ha condotto l'inchiesta Sono passati oltre cinquant'anni da quel 27 ottobre 1962, quando l'aereo su cui viaggiava Enrico Mattei precipitò nella campagna pavese. Cinquant'anni di omissioni, bugie, depistaggi di Stato che hanno visto anche la stampa in gran parte schierata a confondere fatti e prove anziché contribuire a cercare la verità, così come dimostra questo libro, secondo la drammatica ricostruzione di Sabrina Pisu e del pm Vincenzo Calia, titolare dell'inchiesta avviata nel 1994 e conclusa nel 2003. Non si trattò di un “tragico incidente”, fu “un omicidio deliberato”, qualcuno sabotò l'aereo che precipitò in seguito a un'esplosione. Calia offre un quadro completo dei motivi per cui molti volevano fermare Mattei. Le ipotesi costruite su una documentazione vastissima, raccolta in anni di ricerche, sono rivelatrici. Come scriveva Bocca, “la verità dà ancora fastidio”, troppi gli interessi in gioco. Il giornalista Mauro De Mauro, sollecitato dal regista Francesco Rosi a collaborare alla lavorazione del film "Il caso Mattei", scomparve nel nulla subito prima delle rivelazioni che si apprestava a fare. Chi nel tempo provò a indagare sulla sua morte fu ucciso: il commissario Boris Giuliano, il pm Pietro Scaglione, il generale Dalla Chiesa, il colonnello Ninni Russo, il giudice Terranova. Anche Pasolini, che stava scrivendo il romanzo "Petrolio" con protagonista il successore di Mattei, Eugenio Cefis, fu ammazzato. Vite sacrificate per servire lo Stato e che lo Stato, incapace di processare se stesso, non ha difeso.

Il caso Mattei

This landmark volume offers a major re-assessment of the art that emerged in Britain in the twenty years following the end of the Second World War: a period of anxiety, profound social change and explosive creativity. Published to coincide with the Barbican Centre's 40th anniversary, it draws together the work of fifty artists, exploring a period straddled precariously between the horror of the past and the promise of the future. Spanning painting, sculpture, architecture, ceramics and photography, Postwar Modern will explore a rich field of experiment which challenges the idea that Britain was a cultural backwater at this time. Through new texts by Jane Alison, Hilary Floe, Ben Highmore, Hammad Nassar and Greg Salter, the book looks afresh at celebrated artists such as Francis Bacon, David Hockney, Lucian Freud and Eduardo Paolozzi, shown in dialogue with lesser-known figures. These will include those, like Francis Newton Souza, Avinash Chandra and Robert Adams, who were acclaimed by contemporaries but neglected in subsequent history-making; others, like Kim Lim, Anwar Jalal Shemza and Franciszka Themerson, are only now attracting the attention they deserve. Throughout their work, vital shared preoccupations become visible: gender, class, race and nationhood; the body, the bombsite, and the home. It is a period resonating strongly with our own: as the UK emerges from more than a decade of austerity and confronts the challenges of post-pandemic reconstruction, society is asking similarly deep questions about who we want and need to be.

Postwar Modern

In this collection of essays, an international group of renowned scholars attempt to establish the theoretical basis for studying the ancient and medieval history of the Mediterranean Sea and the lands around it. In so doing they range far afield to other Mediterraneans, real and imaginary, as distant as Brazil and Japan. Their work is an essential tool for understanding the Mediterranean, pre-modern and modern alike. It speaks to ancient and medieval historians, to archaeologists, anthropologists and all historians with environmental interests, and not least to classicists.

Rethinking the Mediterranean

How the law harms sex workers—and what they want instead Do you have to endorse prostitution in order to support sex worker rights? Should clients be criminalized, and can the police deliver justice? In Revolting Prostitutes, sex workers Juno Mac and Molly Smith bring a fresh perspective to questions that have long been contentious. Speaking from a growing global sex worker rights movement, and situating their argument firmly within wider questions of migration, work, feminism, and resistance to white supremacy, they make it clear that anyone committed to working towards justice and freedom should be in support of the sex worker rights movement.

This is a collection of stories which draw upon the themes running through John Auerbach's life - his years at sea, on a kibbutz in Israel, as an alienated man in America and his own and other's survival of the war and Holocaust.

The Owl & Other Stories

No enquiry into the making of the modern European state can ignore the part played by law. This comprehensive scholarly volume examines in detail how states availed themselves of juridical techniques in order to mould their institutions, to take control over their territory, and to exercise power over their subjects. The contributors are leading scholars in the field, who explore the administration of justice and the promulgation of legislation across Europe over a period of several centuries, in order to uncover the role of the law in the birth and development of the European state. The Origins of the Modern State in Europe series arises from an important international research programme sponsored by the European Science foundation. the aim of the series, which comprises seven volumes, is to bring together specialists from different countries, who reinterpret from a comparative European perspective different aspects of the formation of the state over the long period from the beginning of the thirteenth to the end of the eighteenth century. One of the main achievements of the research programme has been to overcome the long-established historiographical tendency to regard states mainly from the viewpoint of their twentieth-century borders.

Legislation and Justice

This volume brings together for the first time a collection of twelve articles written both jointly and individually by Peregrine Horden and Nicholas Purcell as they have participated in the debates generated by their major work, The Corrupting Sea: A Study of Mediterranean History (2000). One theme in those debates has been how a comprehensive Mediterranean history can be written: how an approach to Mediterranean history by way of its ecologies and the communications between them can be joined up with more mainstream forms of enquiry – cultural, social, economic, and political, with their specific chronologies and turning points. The second theme raises the question of how Mediterranean history can be fitted into a larger, indeed global history. It concerns the definition of the Mediterranean in space, the way to characterise its frontiers, and the relations between the region so defined and the other large spaces, many of them oceans, to which historians have increasingly turned for novel disciplinary-cum-geographical units of study. A volume collecting the two authors' studies on both these themes, as well as their reply to critics of The Corrupting Sea, should prove invaluable to students and scholars from a number of disciplines: ancient, medieval and early modern history, archaeology, and social anthropology. Homo Donans. For a Maternal Economy

The modern Italian classic about Calabrian organized crime—now an award-winning motion picture—makes its English-language debut. In the remote Aspromonte Mountains in southern Calabria, Italy, three best friends embark on a life of crime in order to raise themselves up out of the poverty of their childhoods. Brainy Luciano, the behind-the-scenes schemer, was orphaned as a little boy when the local mob boss had his postman father executed. Lazy, jovial Luigi has learned that there's no point in following the rules. And completing the triumvirate is the nameless narrator, from whose black soul comes the inspiration and energy for each new criminal project, from kidnapping to armed robbery to heroin dealing to contract killing. Set in the birthplace of the 'Ndrangheta, Calabria's ruthless and ubiquitous mafia, Black Souls draws on centuries of brigand lore, peasant rebellion history, mountain mythology, and colonial suffering to offer a gripping morality tale about how violence begets violence.

The Boundless Sea

Wolfgang Flür was vital cog in the Kraftwerk machine, galvanising the group's electric drum sound throughout the 1970's and propelling the rhythmic backbone of iconic albums such as Autobahn and Electric Café. I Was A Robot is a detailed, evocative account, written in Flür's no-nonsense style. It takes us from his youth into the band's formation and touring of their influential works, laying bare the acrimonious break-up and court cases that later followed. This book is the final word on Kraftwerk, their continued influence and what it felt like to be a Man-Machine. "This is a first-hand account of human life inside the robot factory. A world that I could barely have imagined as a 16-year-old Kraftwerk fan stranded in a suburb on the wrong side of the river from Liverpool. A window into a world that I could never have imagined." Andy McCluskey, OMD "Kraftwerk is a myth. Wolfgang is for real. Thus handsome elder statesman of Electronic Music gives a lot of useful inside information about the Men-Machines." Rudi Esch, ELECRI_CITY

Black Souls

Despite its unequalled history of success, the European Union is still far from its citizens. In the aftermath of the failed referenda on the European constitutional treaty in France and the Netherlands in the early summer of 2005, the EU is facing a severe crisis of trust. Hence, the questions arise: how much pressure can the community tolerate in order to persist and what does hold it together in times of scarcity, conflict, danger, and threat? The contributions of this volume do not only provide a variety of conceptualizations of European identity in the broad field of social sciences such as sociology, political theory and international relations, but first and foremost intend to enrich the present research by offering new theoretical perspectives and recent empirical findings.

Kraftwerk: I Was a Robot

From Carolina Soul Records, one of the world's largest online record sellers, comes the definitive guide to every aspect of record collecting in the digital era. Any music fan knows that there's nothing like the tactile pleasure of a record. Even with access to a variety of streaming services, digital technology has paved the way for the analog revival; from multiplatinum megahits to ultra-obscure private presses, millions of records are available for purchase from all over the world. Vinyl Age is the ultimate post-internet guide to record collecting. Written by Max Brzezinski of Carolina Soul Records, one of the world's largest high-end record dealers, Vinyl Age combines an engaging narrative and incisive analysis to reveal the joys and explain the complexities of the contemporary vinyl scene. Brzezinski demystifies the record game and imparts the skills essential to modern record digging -- how to research, find, buy, evaluate, and understand vinyl in the twenty-first century.

European Identity

_____ 'Bold and beautiful' - Financial Times 'Remarkable' - Independent 'Assured and endlessly creative' - Metro _____ A nine-year-old Kurdish boy plays in his village in the Persian mountains, gazing over the land of his fathers and forefathers. But when messengers from the hills bring whispers of war and rumours that the Shah's army is on the march, he must stand alongside his villagers and fight for their land. Years later, he can only faintly recall the brutal murder of his father and cousins. Orphaned on the battlefield, conscripted and given a new name, Reza is married and has risen up the ranks to become Captain. But there are stirrings within his heart. He will soon be sent west to Kermanshah, to rule as the Shah's servant in the land of his birth.

Vinyl Age

Named after the Ten Commandments, 'Ten' uncovers the raw heart of Naples, telling the stories of ordinary people forced to make extraordinary compromises in a city permeated by crime. With the lightest brush strokes, Longo builds a vivid portrait of a city, its people, and their dreams of escape.

The Age of Orphans

"Behind every thing there is almost always something else hidden." Certainly more than meets the eye with playful images and conceits, while most of it takes place in the head of Mr. Malerba's scapegrace little stamp dealer, confined in his small shop with its "odor of gum arabic. . . of faint mold." In the beginning, he is married to a spiteful wife; he is an insomniac; he smokes too many cigarettes. In the smoke rings--there's the lovely Miriam whom sometimes he suspects (ah, the serpent) of infidelity with his good friend Baldasseroni. But then, she doesn't even know him. He takes her to a radiologist for some other latent malignancy: he later consigns her to Hell - in fact he may have killed her. He's a Cannibal; he's a Sorcerer: he's a free-floater with the motility of a paramecium. Is he anybody? Is he everybody? Perhaps, and the book, while an eclectic entertainment, is prankishly ingenuous, imaginative. Volatile."--Kirkus

Popular Justice in Europe (18th-19th Centuries)

He is fifty, a man of middle years with a weak heart and two failed marriages. Mourning the loss of the boundless energy he squandered as a young man, he is a creature of habit now, relying on daily patterns to pace himself, to conserve what is left. She is nineteen, young enough to be his daughter, full of the vitality of youth and fearless—or perhaps only blind to the dangers life brings. Spare and moving, An Elegy for September captures the turning point in the life of a man as he confronts his own mortality—and confronts truths about himself he never suspected. Featuring some of John Nichols's best writing, An Elegy for September is a brief, poignant, and eloquent novel that renders an age-old story in a fresh and powerful form. "One of the finest things he has ever written."—Los Angeles Times

Ten

From critically acclaimed author Paul Mosier, a Publishers Weekly Flying Start, comes a stunning story about the beauty of family, the power of community, and ultimately the strength of the human spirit. Twelve-year-old El has planned on making her first week at a new school fantastic. She won't go by her given name, Laughter. She'll sit in the back of the classroom where she can make new friends. She won't even have time to think about all the fun her old friends are having without her. Everything will be great. But when her dad picks her up after school and tells her that her younger sister, Echo, has a life-threatening illness, her world is suddenly turned upside down. And with her parents now pressed for time and money, El feels lost and powerless. Then she befriends Octavius, the only other kid in school who gets what she's going through. As El begins to adjust to her new life, she soon finds that maybe a little hope and a lot of love can overcome any obstacle.

The Serpent

In his specially written introduction, crime novelist Martin Edwards, President of the Detection Club and author of the multi-award winning 'The Golden Age of Murder' writes "The reappearance of 'Death in the Dark,' truly a one-of-a-kind detective novel is long overdue and will be widely welcomed." "Death in the Dark" by George Antheil was until now the rarest novel in detective fiction and one of the most complex, with its three impossible crimes committed in one apartment under cover of darkness, but how and why it came into being is even stranger, as described in the extensive Afterword. Antheil, an expatriate avant-garde composer whose works were performed throughout Europe in the 1920s had a disastrous Carnegie Hall concert in 1927 and wrote 'Death in the Dark' out of revenge in 1929. In it he murdered all the people he held responsible. He was helped by Ezra Pound and W.B. Yeats and T.S. Eliot himself wrote "This is a very good detective story." Locked Room International discovers and publishes impossible crime mysteries from all over the world. For more information please contact pugmire1@yahoo.com or go to www.mylri.com.
